What do you think of the new NYPD parade permit regulation?
If all paraders need permits than cycling paraders should too, but if it's used as a tool to harass cyclists, then it needs to be changed. I have not, myself, been stopped by the police for riding in a group so perhaps I'm not a good proponent.

How can the City improve bicycling conditions?
Fine people who open car doors into traffic without checking for cyclists and double it if they blame the cyclist; make them liable for injury to bike or rider as a result. Fine pedestrians who cross against the light in front of oncoming bike traffic because it's not a car, and pedestrians who stand or walk in bike lanes, and same to double-parked cars, push-carts, and any of the other endless obstructions in the bike lanes, and fine people who chastise cyclists for not using the bike lanes.

Make whistles, not bells, mandatory for cyclists because no one, NO ONE pays any attention to a wimpy little bell!

Make all cab drivers take cycling sensitivity courses to learn how to deal with their two-wheeled brethren. In fact, make this part of driver's ed.
